The British Women Will Have a Remarkable Exhibit.

The Final Plans For the Irish Village Dehided On-Lady Aberdeen in Charge of the Scotch Exhibit-Minister Liucoln Working Hard for the Fair.

LONDON. July 6 .- From present fudications the main feature of Great Britsin exhibits at the World's fair will be the work of the woman's committee, who, with Princess Christian at its head, with Lady Aberdeen in charge of the Irish and Scotch exhibits and many other distinguished ladies having accomplished more than other officers, or of the royal commission here which has hitherto been divided by jealousies and hindered by the disinclination of some of the largest manufacturers to exhibit on account of the McKinley bill.

Lady Aberdeen, who has been particularly active in promoting the general work of the committee, and of her sections in particular, said to the Assocrated Press reporter: "Yes, we have every reason to feel greatly encouraged and to hope that our exhibit will be worthy your country. You know that of the £50,000 appropriated by parliament, £8,000 only was allotted to the women's section, so that the greater portion of the necessary funds are being raised by private subscription here and in America. Besides the work and meetings of each committee we hold weekly meetings of the general committee, and I am happy to say that the outlook is most favorable. Your minister, Mr. Lincoln, always seems greatly daughter out in the yard to play, and interested in the success of the World's locking the the door, did the work.

Referring to the Irish exhibit, Lady Aberdeen showed the reporter the final plans for the Irish village, which has just been decided on, and which will be once. As in the first plans the cottages will be grouped around a quadrangle, will be added-a large map in relief accurately drawn to scale and showing the rivers, mountains, towns and villages of the Emereld isle, "so that all your lrish over there can show each other just where they were born and lived," explained Lady Aberdeen. "For the gateway to the Irish section," she continued, "we shall send over some fine old gates from some historical place in Ireland; and on entering the gateway the ruins of Donegal castle in the opposite corner will be seen at once." Lady Aberdeen will herself go over to America next year and remain at the exhibition a considerable time. Mr. Lincoln has been criticised in some quarters in America for an alleged tried to open the escape valve, but it lack of interest in the fair, but as shown by Lady Aberdeen's statement above, and from other quarters, these criticisms are most unjust, and the an arrow toward the water, while all present encouraging aspect of the three were almost smothered by the women's section here is largely due to escaping gas when the basket struck the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln.

"The fact is," said an intimate friend very well. of the minister, "that up to that point of the British acceptance of America's invitation and the removal of the force of the effect of our labor immigration work necessarily fell on their shoulders, and his work has naturally been confined to private conversation. When the Butterworth commission came over here last year Mr. Lincoln did all he could to promote its success and arranged a special interview with Lord Salisbury. When Mrs. Palmer was here Mr. Lincoln presented her at the drawing room at the diplomatic circle, calling special attention to her mission, and he also arranged for a special interview for Mrs. Palmer with the Princess Christian and introduced her to a number of influential Englishwomen. I don't see what more anyone could have done."

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 8 .- Of the $45,-000 stolen from the United States Express Co. at Washington, D. C., on June 21, two weeks ago Tuesday, by E. J. Ryan, the company Tuesday received $44,814, Ryan having spent $187 of the stolen money.

Tuesday morning City Detective Demmel took Ryan to the Pittsburgh Safe Deposit Co. on Fourth avenue. When he reached the building he looked up and said: "This is the place.

He was taken inside, where were waiting Superintendent of Police Roger O'Mara, the superintendent of the United States Express Co., and the Pittsburgh agent, Mr. J. D. Zimmerman.

Ryan was identified by the Safe Deposit Co.'s officials, and his signature compared with the one be left when he secured a box. He wrote J. M. Lyon and then was taken to the vault, where he stood a moment, and then reaching up to the top row of boxes pulled one down, but had some difficulty in getting it open. It was finally opened in the pres ence of those mentioned, and the reason it was so difficult to open they discovered was because it was packed full to overflowing with crisp new bills of various denominations neatly laid and pressed into the box. He took the money out, counted it, signed the necessary papers to the deposit company and turned the money over to Mr. Zimmerman. There was $41,380 in the box. Searcely a word was spoken during the time, and when he had given ap the money he left the building, accompanied by Detective Demmel. Ryan is only 20, but scarcely ooks that old. He is of very slender build, with a smooth face and light bair, about five feet six inches, and would weigh about 125 pounds. He was neatly dressed in a light suit. Ryan was taken to Washington Tueslay night, but whether the company will punish him or not has not been determined. Mr. Zimmerman put the recovered money in a canvass bag, and, accompanied by Superintendent O'Mara, placed it in a safe place.
